

Contact:
Tim Kafalas
917.783.7764
tim@thisismycity.tv

THIS IS MY CITY INC. brings together Thomas Beug, a 6ft 8' Irish National Frisbee player cum award winning New York agency producer/director and Tim Kafalas, a small town Rhode Island video nerd cum MTV music video editor/lady-killer.

Tim Kafalas

A humble film major from Fitchburg State College, the self-dubbed 'Working Class Film School', Tim moved from Rhode Island to Brooklyn in 2001 and quickly dispensed with the humility. He started on the post-production ladder as a video engineer at RIOT Manhattan and maintains that his technical skills in all things video remain unrivalled in the tri-state area.

In 2004, Tim joined MTV's promo department as a full time editor. By 2008, the ascension was complete with Tim acting as a lead editor and post-production supervisor on "52 Bands", MTV's channel redesign. Acting as editor, producer and on-shoot consultant, Tim headed campaigns with Janet Jackson, The Foo Fighters, Panic at the Disco, Weezer and Gnarl Barkley to name a few.

Besides the countless promos, commercials, and episodics, Tim has also cut music videos for Regina Spektor and Band of Horses as well as an award-winning PSA campaign for safe sex and an award winning Choose or Lose voting promo. Other duties at MTV include being the go-to department counselor and confidante, and all around Mister fix it.

In 2007, Tim founded his own company, AWESOME SERIOUSLY, as a catch-all production company for the many freelance projects on the go ranging from DVD production, 2nd unit camera-work and website design.

When not pondering frame-rates, Tim is probably watching soccer, grilling in his back yard, taking a laptop apart and designing somebody's website - all at the same time.

View reel at www.timkaf.com